

LIZ PHAIR, Lazy Dreamer

You fall hard, you fall deep even when your awake you look half asleep do you even know what you did last summer?
Wandering around deaf, dumb and blind and the girls all hanging around you

Is that no or yes?
We'll have to guess Mysterious eyes let you see what you want Half the time you didn't know any better
But half the time you did Hanging around like tomorrow doesn't apply to you

Lazy dreamer
You never want to rise
Stubborn in-betweener your almost paralyzed makes no difference the sun shining in your eyes
or the sun thats blinding Waiting for you but they don't even realize
Your still out there alone

Still laying at home Bet thats you on the phone
Like a dog you show up And wag your tail for a bone Half the time you didn't know any better, but half the time you did
And all the girls hanging around you

Lazy dreamer
You never want to rise
Stubborn in-betweener your almost paralyzed
makes no difference the sun shining in your eyes
or the sun thats blinding
Waiting for you but they don't even realize
Your still out there alone

Who gets to know what they neighbors say Lives in a room by himself Watch him awake and he places his eyes but he doesnt recongize anyone at all

Lazy dreamer
You never want to rise
Stubborn in-betweener your almost paralyzed
makes no difference the sun shining in your eyes
or the sun thats blinding
Waiting for you but they don't even realize
Your still out there alone
