Mary Lou Lord, Two Boats

Harsh words I heard him say
He knows how to hurt me
Rear lights and flying kites
Long days in the sun
All gone behind us now
So hard to remember
This time I'Il put it down
Before it's begun

And you harbored in your sheltering bay Still watching as she's sailing away No movement on the ocean today But for two boats drifting apart

Deep looks into my eyes he tries to convince me No way I'd fall for that I know what I am

He swears and so do I But we don't believe it No God or chosen one Can prove where we stand

And you harbored in your sheltering bay Still watching as she's sailing away No movement on the ocean today But for two boats drifting apart

And I doubt everything I knew, or at least what I supposed It's my fault and it's your fault too, you know

And you harbored in your sheltering bay Still watching as she's sailing away No movement on the ocean today But for two boats drifting apart
