Materia, Rising

raise it's under your skin or disappear their needles are in the nightmare begins you feel something there's something inside your head stinging, aching you are becoming mad you can't escape there's no place to run away it will always fond you tear it out as fast as you can or destroy what surrounds you there is something I feel something in me I can't take its presence I can't let it win

raise it's under your skin or disappear their needles are in the nightmare begins

it's feeding on you lie is piercing you through fog is getting thick we're disappearing in it you can't escape there's no place to run away it will always find you tear ot out as fas as you can or destroy what surrounds you away from you there's a world that we used to know so close for you so close for me but not enough to change it love's close for you love's close for me but not enough to take it