Neil Finn, King Tide

It's a dark and empty room
The sun beating hard on your door
Feel emotion roar within you
You're flesh and blood like anyone

Make some sense of your life Move your hand and make the mark I don't know why you're so confused You're flesh and blood, there's no excuse

And the hunger inside Won't go away, it's starting to rise And the longer you hide The more you deny And the sea rushes in

The wind is howling at your back The past is always overturned It's a dead man who would refuse and twice the man to fill his shoes

And the hunger inside
Won't go away it's starting to rise
And the longer you hide
The more you deny
And the hunger inside
Won't go away it's starting to rise
And the sea rushes in
Into my world

I can feel the king tide coming
All my senses overflowing
One night waiting out the back
Horns'll blow and cymbals crash
So paint a circle in the sky
I lay breathless in the arms of love
There's a bruise on my back
And a new understanding too