Nomy, I will die in your place

All this obligations hold them on a distance if you can Why are your eyes blue I can see the pain escaping out of you She was born into an empty world to be a girl a girl that I will carry never fear this life if the end you'll face and I will die in your place You are loved by all think about them twice before you fall embrace your self esteem your love is all you need now you're supreme You gain nothing when you're holding it back you gotta fight them hard when they do attack