

Paul Alan, You Can Never Have Too Much Merriment

Wooah
You can never have
Wooah
too much merriment

The Life is made of difficult drama
That are larger and smaller
One chapter is closing and other chapter is opening
It's right never you can't know what you're up against
But is it really all such hard?
In your head have a different ideas
You are using them everyday
Your mind allows you to realize it
So what is the answer?
I know that life can surprise
And in unexpected way
Now I wanna say you that

You can never have too much merriment
Enjoy and use every moment
Just today you can experience it
Look in the mirror and will see yourself as you are
You can never have too much merriment
She always escapes somewhere
Imperceptibly, however, it's revolves around you
So take it and hold it as long as possible

Wooah
You can never have
Wooah too much merriment

Sometimes it seems to us that's easier to worry
We are rushing for our affairs
We're looking for our place in the world and we can't find it
We lose hope that we achieve it ever
In our life there is not place for joy
But it only it seems to us
Art is to find in yourself a good feelings
Express them with delight
And maybe you're just near Look at carefully

You can never have too much merriment
Enjoy and use every moment
Just today you can experience it
Look in the mirror and will see yourself as you are
You can never have too much merriment
She always escapes somewhere
Imperceptibly, however, it's revolves around you
So take it and hold it as long as possible

Your heart waits until you feed them with well being Hug them and treat yourself to the pleasure
Love can not come from anything else
Never say that it is too late because...

You can never have too much merriment
Enjoy and use every moment
Just today you can experience it
Look in the mirror and will see yourself as you are
You can never have too much merriment
She always escapes somewhere
Imperceptibly, however, it's revolves around you
So take it and hold it as long as possible

Wooah
You can never have
Wooah
too much merriment

wooah

Wooah
You can never have
Wooah
