

Phosphorescent, Joe Tex, These Taming Blues

is it ever gonna not be so hard to see you around?

am i really really really really gonna have to really gonna have to really have to leave town?

i mean i called upon a bunch of angels calling angels ain't you supposed to come and take away th i mean we came upon a bunch of rabies and there is nothing all us little animals can do.

all five kinds of rains

all nine kinds of thunder and eighteen white horses who will not ever come to me!

don't plant your feet, love, in that garden of blame.

is it ever gonna stop this trouble of just being around my friend?

am i really really really really gonna have to really gonna have to really have to leave town again?

i mean i lay myself upon the water calling water ain't you supposed to come and save us all from a i mean we're caught among the awful branches and you know they're burning us and yes they're b and i stood on the shore.

all wilted and wondering,

"ain't you got nobody, ain't you still sweet tonight?"

so don't plant no more feet, love, in that forest of blame.
