R.E.M., Letter Never Sent

It's been pretty simple so far, vacation in Athens is calling me And knock, knock, knock on wood, I thought I'd left you behind Heaven is yours, heaven is yours, heaven's yours where I live

The thought of the catacombs left my soul at home This letter never sent And it's so far, it's so dark, I'm so lost Heaven's yours, heaven's yours, heaven's yours where I live (Another story, another story for a while, someone show me) When I'm moving too fast, where's my new address?

The water is evening now, the catacombs are filling in If my soul was made of stone, no, not, not so dark, dark

And it's so far, it's so dark, I'm so lost And it's so far, it's so far, it's so far

Heaven's yours, heaven's yours, heaven's yours where I live (Another story, another story for a while, someone show me) Heaven's yours, heaven's yours, heaven's yours where I live (Another story, another story for a while, someone show me)
