Ray Charles, Yours Sincerely

Dearest one
I write what I'm afraid to speak,
I'm weak when I'm with you,
Tears of love are causing
All the ink to blot
So what am I to do?
Hoping to find the phrases,
Groping to find each word,
How they all burn like blazes,
Now they all seem absurd.
Though I don't know where to end
And to begin
You must give in because

I'm yours sincerely, The one who loves you dearly, To think about it nearly takes My breath away. Very truly My passion is unruly, A dream of you is newly born Each night and day. Oh but my thoughts are fervent, How can I make them plain? Ever your humble servant Faithfully I remain. I'm intending To find a happy ending Because I love you dearly I'm sincerely yours.