

Robots In Disguise, What Junior Band Did Next

Tell me again about that boy named "Junior Band";
He had the energy of a wildcat, and wide open eyes his hands moved constantly - dancing here, stopping there Never was still to catch his breath

What happened to "Junior Band"; the teenager?
His voice broke, his birthday suit felt tight all over
Kissing with tongues became a preoccupation

The sun stretched out and sang golden to him
His eyes became leaden lidded
It crossed his mind never to move
So delicious was this place and feeling

He was off like a dream
Dizzy from the heat, but oh! so content
He felt like he was in love
Or that it would feel like this

He was off like a dream
Dizzy from the heat, but oh! so content
He felt like he was in love
Or that it would feel like this
He felt like he was in love
Or that it would feel like this

The sun moved away to the other side of the sky
Cold seeped through the green
Underneath grew moist with the night
Junior band lay still, his back becoming wet
He felt scared

Did "Junior Band"; live happily ever after?
He lay through the ice and the north wind
Realising that they were but a different face of his known sun
The recollection of the moments urging long ago forced him onto his feet
Looking into the mirror "Junior Band"; saw he was a man
He took the title "Robots In Disguise";

The sun stretched out and sang golden anew
Our hero stared her out of the sky
It crossed his mind to ever to move
To delicious places, feelings

He was off on the ride
Burning from the heat, but oh! what intent
He knew the shape of love
Looked like this

He was of on the ride
Burning from the heat, but oh! what intent
He knew the shape of love
Looked like this
He knew the shape of love
Looked like this

Va-t-en! Il faut que tu me quittes!
Sois explorateur avant que la mort te prenne...
