

Sarah Brightman, Arrival

Sing, sing, sing the song they sang with us
When they sailed away
Bring, bring, bring them back again
To these lonely shores one day
We'll be here awaiting their arrival
How that moment's gonna shine
May they ring then in our hearts
The jubilant bells of Auld Lang Syne
Sing, sing, sing the sing of sirens
If that is what it takes
Bring, bring, bring them back again
To each lonely heart that aches
I'll be first to know of your arrival
I'll be first to pour the wine
May they ring then in our hearts
The jubilant bells of Auld Lang Syne
Sing, sing, sing a song of sadness
That they are so long gone
Bring, bring, bring a ray of hop
And the courage to go on
We'll be here awaiting their arrival
How that moment's gonna shine
May they ring then in our hearts
The jubilant bells of Auld Lang Syne"