

Scapegoat, Let Me Drown

you said I was something new something you've never known before and you have forced me to let go and you're not worth one of my tears and still it's sad that you can't see all this stained are the papers that I slave over for you so just stay, in your four walls don't blot my tear just let me drown and stay out of mine and now I turn my back and I refuse to look in your eyes and in time it all will fade away and I'll wipe this tear off my cheek and I will wipe this tear off my cheek and I wont drown

in these useless tears