

School Of Seven Bells, Lafaye

You broke into the fabric as a stranger, lafaye
And there your heart was taken from you
You had the blood of intuition with a name that branded you
And the familiar unfamiliar would be the only thing you knew

La-ah faye, la-ah-ah ah-ah-ah, la-ah faye-aye

Your birth became a place to seek and revive again
And every death, oh loathe to choose or won't to lose
You wove a chain of indecision into a cloud that followed you
And with the rain in equal measure,
You brought the sun to guide you through

La-ah faye, la-ah-ah ah-ah-ah, la-ah faye-aye
