

Scotty Don't, A Little Time

Every problem that I solve and every day that I evolve
Just makes a little more light so I can see
But now I see a way, a way that weighs more every day
I think it's bigger than it really needs to be
It's looking like my mind
Is something I can't really find
I think I dropped it late last night at some crazy show
But I think we'll be fine.
I know that once again this time
My lingered thoughts will slowly walk themselves back home

(Chorus)

A little time, a little time to run away
Don't look back if you're looking for another day
A little time, a little time to run away
Don't look back if you're looking for another day

Every problem that I solve
And every day I evolve
Just makes a little bit more light so I can see
But now I see a way, a way that weighs more every day
I think it's bigger than it really needs to be

(Chorus)

A little time, a little time to run away
Don't look back if you're looking for another day
A little time, a little time to run away
Don't look back if you're looking for another day