

Shenandoah, The Moon Over Georgia

he owns a big estate just south of savannah and a high rise hotel in down-town atlanta add half the state of georgia to his name she'd be set for life in his colonial manner he laid the world at her feet on a silver platter but all i had to offer her, was the moon

-ChOrUs-

*and she took the moon over georgia she'd rather have a million stars in the sky than a gold mine
she took the moon over georgia when it came down to his world or mine

-a little country house in need of expansion it's far cry from his south georgia mansion but we've got our own paradise. shadows dancin' til dawn with a full moon shinin' and those occasional clouds all have a silver lining there really must be something about, that old yellow light

Chorus*till end
