Sheryl Crow, Try Not To Remember

try to erase the smell of freedom and every face that happened to meet mine what still remains something unrelenting i'll say the names of those I left behind

chorus:

in the still of the night do you laugh do you cry do you try not to remember? if its a question of fate do you love do you hate do you try not to remember?

i see your eyes in my own reflection these broken skys begin begin to mend we are the same fighting for something whats left to gain? theres no means to an end

chorus:

in the still of the night do you laugh do you cry do you try not to remember? if its a question of fate do you love to you hate do you try not to remember?