Sick Of It All, Martin

Hidden like the squalor that we create Martin wants out of this but poverty keeps him in this place Sratching like the vermin between the walls Martin needs a friend but the people the he meets just give him shit and pretend, they're no good he's not blind, all he needs is a single ray of light

Life's too short but seems too long when lonliness becomes the norm life's too short but seems too long and it may come as no surprise but the lonliness in martin's eyes was good enough and life itself was long enough

Knowing full well, knowing what's going on knowing for far too long, jealous he's so jealous of all the fun Martin needs a friend but the pricks that he meets just give him shit and pretend Long enough, life itself was long enough had enough, he laid down when he had enough