

Sophie Ellis-Bextor, Catch You

The morning paper
Look in the mirror
On your kitchen
Or in the coffee spoon
On your shirt sleeve
In the flat-screen
In your mailbox
Breathing over you

Come on baby, when will you see
'Cause you and I were meant to be
And know I got my target all on track
Baby you should know that I'm so good at that

Run to where you want, run to where you want
I am gonna find you
There aint no distance far enough
My love's gonna find you

Run to where you want, run to where you want
Maybe I'll remind you
There aint no engine fast enough
My love's gonna catch you

In your top drawer
In your cheque book
On your cellphone
By you every chair
In the next room
Behind the curtain
Can't escape me
I'm watching everywhere

Come on baby, when will you see
'Cause you and I were meant to be
And know I got my target, I'm on track
Baby you should know that I'm so good at that

Go to where you want
Go to where you want
I am gonna find you
There aint no distance far enough
My love's gonna find you

Run to where you want, run to where you want
Maybe I'll remind you
There aint no engine fast enough
My love's gonna catch you

Why waste your energy
No point in fighting
Let you heart surrender to your destiny

And this world's not big enough
For you to hide for long
In this game of hide and seek

Run to where you want, run to where you want
I am gonna find you
My love's gonna find you

Run to where you want, run to where you want

Maybe I'll remind you

Catch you, catch you ...
