

Stars, Life Effect

sorry for wasting your time five long months on the telephone line hours of asking if you were fine and saying i was fine, too sorry, but i've got to go the birth was quick but the death was slow there was so much i didn't know so much i never knew about you and so we disconnect

the room goes quiet around us it's called the life effect will it always surround us who made you happy last night i don't know his name, but christ can he fight as i fell, he told me you had a light a light that shone inside you i found myself a decent man now i love him because i can the bravest that i've ever been was when i ran away from you

and so we disconnect

nothing left to protect the end has finally found us the day is almost over it's almost time for bed so now you've finally lost me rest your weary head
