Stonewall Jackson, Shackles And Chains

On a long lonesome journey I am going oh my sweet little darling don't cry For in shackles and chains they will take me to a prison to live till I die And each night through the bars I will gaze at the stars My dreams dear for you so in vain

A piece of stone I will use for my pillow while I'm sleeping in shackles and chains [ steel ]

Put your arms through these bars once more darling Let me kiss those sweet lips I love best

In sorrow they were my consolation and in sadness my heaven of rest And at night through the bars...
