

Tacere, Beautiful Darkness

Every night, this emptiness:
Yearning for something obscure.
Like spikes in roses my love is frail
When I saw you I knew Cinderella in black.

My dark beauty
He saw you as the shadows slithered by
The ultimate sacrifice
He is willing to give up for you
Just come and embrace our sorrow
My dark beauty

Every time darkness falls
I am crying out for you.
These tears of desire, tears of distress,
True in all form, bleeding for you.

My dark beauty
He saw you as the shadows slithered by
The ultimate sacrifice
He is willing to give up for you
Just come and embrace our sorrow

The dim light swept her perfect form:
The girl with blackened locks.
The face of an angel fallen from grace:
Eyes witnessing the abhorrence
The beautiful darkness

My dark beauty
He saw you as the shadows slithered by
The ultimate sacrifice
He is willing to give up for you
Just come and embrace, just come and embrace
Just come and embrace our sorrow