

The Backstrokes, To Alina

VERSE 1:

Turning back a day in this story,
the pages blank before me, still haunting.
Your words that day forever still call me, like screaming in silence.
But knowing I could see you by daylight,
my arms around you, feeling you near me,
now praying that you'd come back here

CHORUS

Days when I could still recall your presence in my dreams,
And so, I've seen your face again, just yesterday
Know that I'll always linger on here, lost in nights of yesterday.
Now sleep and I'll hold your hand in mine, then wake, and I'll cry to dream again

VERSE 2:

Walking through this field I can feel you,
In visions this sky can't be brighter,
A single breath is all that will keep me,
Oh please say you'll come back.
But knowing I could see you by daylight,
My arms around you, feeling you near me,
now praying that you'd come back here

CHORUS