

The Black Crowes, It Must Be Over

Written by: R. Robinson & C. Robinson

No matter what road I take
No matter what laws I break, I still
I keep singing these songs
No matter what my mistakes
No matter how high the stakes, I won't
I won't ever fold

And with time you'll see
You will forget about me
And I've already disowned you
From my memory
Can you see

I know it must be over
This love can last no longer
We both know that it must be over
Now I see

No matter what words I write
No matter no wrong nor right, you still
You listen anyway
No matter where I sleep tonight
No matter if the stars if the stars shine bright, I know
That I'm on my way

And with time you'll see
You will forget about me
And I've already disowned you
From my memory
Can you see

I know it must be over
This love can last no longer
We both know that it must be over
Now I see

Alone is just alone
Tell me what's a happy home
Tell me what's a wasted year
When you lose, when you lose all of your fears
Tell me

And with time you'll see
You will forget about me
And I've already disowned you
From my memory
Can you see

I know it must be over
This love can last no longer
We both know that it must be over
Now I see, now I see, now I....

I know, I know that it must over
This love can last no longer
We both know that it must be over
Now I see
