

The Car Is On Fire, Oh Joe

It struck me once hard (I've realized) all that I used to be a child Everything's fine now (seems ok) sometimes scared of someday
Don't know where all the years has gone
I guess I've been twenty since I was born

Oh, Joe, I can't hear you knocking at my door
(I know you worry, but I'll always be calling you my friend)
Oh, Joe, I can't hear you knocking at my door
(Sometimes it's scary, though I'll always be calling you again)
Do you know I can't hear you knocking at my door?
Oh, Joe, do you know?

It's easier not to think of that when you stand up

I loved a boy with whom I wasn't in love with I liked him more than I like myself

I loved a boy
who liked me more than girlfriend
And after all my only one is away