The Cure, Anniversary

A year ago today we stood Above this same awakening world I held you... You never wanted me to know

Another year ago today Before this same awakening world I held you... I never meant to let you go

There was a moment There always is When time stood still And always was this...

One endless moment You turn in pain And I always let you go Over and over again...

A year ago tonight we lay Below this same remembering sky I kissed you You never wanted me to know...

Another year ago tonight Behind this same remembering sky I kissed you... I never meant to let you go

Another moment There always is As time stands still And always is this...

One endless moment You tell me all And I hold you and I kiss you And I never let you go I never let you go...