

The Do, Song For Lovers

Who dont care if they dont sleep
If dragonflies with heavy hearts
Cut the air like darts
Heres a song for lovers
Who wont ever have to weep
Clear-sighted eyes and uncried tears
All bright out in the sun
You were far too young dear
To get so close to the clouds
No one told you to stay awake
For pleasures of that kind
You were far too small
To step far outside of your house
Now you saw how dragonflies
Tint their hearts with dark
Heres a song for lovers
Who dont care if they bleed
