

The Starting Line, Drawbacks

I'm always seeing something new every time I look at you everything is gone, I say I'm falling to the floor my dignity's dumped overboard and everything's gone astray they may think that I'm a fool they may think that I don't care about it all

I can't belong
I'm not that strong
they can't remember me

I don't know
I can't remember you
I've been thinking about the times
and I don't care

I've almost figured out Just what I should say Everything's playing with my head
All my friend's have told me
It's playing with my heart
And every second is a new start

And they may think that I'm a fool
And they may think that I don't care about it all
I can't belong
I'm not that strong
They can't remember me

I don't know
I can't remember you
I've been thinking about the times
And I don't care
