

Third Eye Blind, Light That Hits The Room

I try to sway
the residue of the night _____
A thousand broken eardrums
Finding you in Amsterdam
The space caved in the red lights
Got the fear of god in me
Sleeping in the back of the church
The priest said it's all right son _____ my attitude

When the light that hits the room starts fading
A subtle whisper in my ear is all I'm asking
When the sunshine day
brings hope to most
I want to be with you

Sitting here all alone
I don't need my fking phone
I got my expectations
So they ate the grape
I still feel the thump in my chest
And I never back down for no one
It doesn't get me closer to you
Just because I can't pray
Doesn't mean I don't feel you

When the light that hits the room starts fading
A subtle whisper in my ear is all I'm asking
When the sunshine day
brings hope to most
I want to be with you

When the light that hits the room starts fading
A subtle whisper in my ear is all I'm asking
When the sunshine day
brings hope to most
I want to be with you

When the light that hits the room starts fading
When the light that hits the room starts fading
When the light that hits the room starts fading
When the light that hits the room starts fading
When the light that hits the room starts fading
