

Tina Arena, But I Lied

Open up my eyes into the morning sun
Wonder if it's always been this bright
I could never tell you where it all went wrong
Because you were always right

I could spend a lifetime handing out the blame
I could call it all a big mistake
But love that we are given never goes away
It just changes every day
Guess I'll find it if I wait

And every day gets better, everything is almost fine
'Cause every night I'm still pretending you're not on my mind
But I lied

There's nothing in your heart that I don't understand
I know yesterday has come and gone
Wishes are like water slipping through my hands
And I never could hold on

Truth is complicated when it comes to you
Every edge is dangerously rough
Nothing ever changes but my point of view
And today I'll call it love
As if calling was enough

And every day gets better, everything is almost fine
'Cause every night I'm still pretending you're not on my mind
But I lied, But I lied, But I lied

Stumbling through this journey is an uphill climb
So much effort gone and more to come
If I was to make love to you one more time
Would I wonder what I had done? Would I be the only one?

And every day gets better, everything is almost fine
'Cause every night I'm still pretending you're not on my mind

And every day gets better, everything is almost fine
'Cause every night I'm still pretending you're not on my mind
But I lied
Yeah yeah
