Trace Adkins, Hold You Now

I can't take back the things I said To you in the past Or make you forget the reasons why We didn't last I'm haunted by what might have been Still I can't change who I was back then But if I could hold you now you'd see I've turned myself around and now I'm someone you'd be proud to love I'd do all the right things, make promises That I'd keep It'd hurt too much to let you down And in my arms there'd be no room for doubt If I could hold you now It's funny how this empty room Makes it all too clear When I let you leave A part of me just disappeared But if I'd known then what I've come to know There's no way I could have let you go But if I could hold you now you'd see I've turned myself around and now I'm someone you'd be proud to love I'd do all the right things, make promises That I'd keep It'd hurt too much to let you down And in my arms there'd be no room for doubt If I could hold you now But if I'd known then what I've come to know There's no way I could have let you go But if I could hold you now you'd see I've turned myself around and now I'm someone you'd be proud to love I'd do all the right things, make promises That I'd keep It'd hurt too much to let you down And in my arms there'd be no room for doubt If I could hold you now If I could hold you now

If I could hold you now
