

Trans-Siberian Orchestra, Who I Am

All these days that lay before me all these days that lay behind does time just go on forever whose decision
whose design

death life
wrong right
pray will you tell me
who decides

dark night
days light
pray will you tell me
who divides

every year contains its seasons summer, winter, spring and fall some pass faster than the others some forgotten some recalled long short owned bought

gathering trinkets
from times tides

rich thoughts
lost sought
still the clock turns
and can't be bribed

i know
i see
i hear
do you understand

the cost
in years
in tears
the weight of the damned

that build
to lakes
then wake
and flood cross the land

we watch
the waves
carve out
their pre-ordained plans

each life
each grave
and then
fill each one with sand

listen what i say
time does not betray every moment cast
guaranteed to pass

every moment close
soon to turn to ghost
some to disappear

others shadows clear

shadows without light
soon become just night
leaving in our mind
what is left behind

do you hear what i say every life's numbered days joined with hourglass sand feel it run through your hands still then no one knows now the true why when and how and when time's out of sand will they know who i... am
