

Viki Gabor, I Should Let Them Know

Sometimes I feel lost, when I'm awake
It's almost like I can't catch a break
Feels like something's missing in my veins
I gotta have it now, no I can't wait

So many voices telling me where I should go
They wanna drive me mad, so I'll put on a show
They keep on trying, I think I should let them know
Oh, I should let them know

I should let them know, know, know, know
I should let them know, know, know, know
They could never break me
No, they could never phase me
I should let them know, know, know

They love hiding behind their shadows
Oh, they used to scare me, now they don't Nothing in their eyes no more is cold
It's funny to me how to switched roles

So many voices telling me where I should go
They wanna drive me mad, so I'll put on a show
They keep on trying, I think I should let them know
Oh, I should let them know

I should let them know, know, know, know
I should let them know, know, know, know
They could never break me
No, they could never phase me
I should let them know, know, know

Toxic words like poison
That's what I'm avoiding
I find it so annoying but
They're not my problem
They are not my problem anymore

(Anymore, anymore, anymore)

I should let them know, know, know, know
I should let them know, know, know, know
They could never break me
No, they could never phase me
I should let them know, know, know, know
I should let them
I should let them know
