

Willie Nelson, Are You Ever Coming Home

Once again it's twelve o'clock and you're still gone
Honey are you ever coming home
I don't mind this waiting for you while you're gone
But honey, are you ever coming home
The wind outside is cold as my poor heart inside
Honey, are you ever coming home
I love you much too much to worry 'bout my pride
But honey, are you ever coming home
Just before I tuck them in
The children question me
"Why did daddy (mommy) leave us all alone?
And I've run out of answers
You've been gone so long
Honey, are you ever coming home
