Willie Nelson, There Goes A Man

There goes a man who gave his heart to someone and I feel sorry for him For that someone just gave her heart to me Now he's the loser and it hurts so much to lose and I feel sorry for him Cause the loser I know could have been me Oh how he loved her I'm sure he must have loved her almost as much as me But fate has frowned on him then turned around and smiled on me There goes a man who gave his heart to someone and I feel sorry for him For that someone just gave her heart to me If things were different and if he had won her love instead of me I wonder if he'd find the time to offer sympathy There goes a man who gave his heart to someone and I feel sorry For him cause that someone just gave her heart to me
