

Winona Oak, Baby Blue

you smelled like palm trees and cigarettes you were the tangerine sky after a wildfire you were a lost thing inside my chest loosening my screws and crossing all my wires how many ways did i say love you did i say i love you but you just couldn't give it back how many days til the sky was falling cause i kept on stalling i knew i'd have to give you back you were a hollywood day dream a beautiful sad thing

oh so blue baby blue, yeah

you were torn like your ripped jeans a bird with a bad wing oh so blue baby blue baby baby blue

baby blue
you were the stranger I knew the best with those angel eyes, you were a wild liar i was the savior you never asked for but I tried and i would until i died oh h ow many ways did i say love you
did i say i love you
a beautiful sad thing
you were torn like your ripped jeans
a bird with a bad wing
oh so blue baby blue you were cold like a winter sky yeah you're so blue baby blue yeah you were rare like the northern lights I wonder was it true, was it true yeah
a beautiful sad thing

a bird with a bad wing
baby blue
baby blue
