

Yen Town Band, Sunday Park

In The Sunday Park Light in the afternoon
I listen to the sound of my dream Coming through All the mountains of Blueberries and greens fairy tale lullaby

I was down last night
Too much to handle here I didn't know how to carry on Still lucky
All the mess in my head, is fading now
Among the crowd on the street

I wish you'd come to my place
You would be smiling so close to me
I wish the day dream never ends

I'm the kind of girl, who lives only for today but I think it's o.k. to be myself Especially when you're not around I need someone to hold I know how to have fun

I wish you were here by my side we would be talking something silly
I wish the day dream never ends

when I feel a single beat of my lonely heart I can sing, I can cry, without knowing why Yes I tried and tried to the way to you somehow life always leads through a maze everyday everynight you live in my mind everyday everynight still pleasure and pain melodies of memories will never stop you are with me until the end of time just a day dream in The Sunday Park
