Bad Religion, 1000 Memories

You were the one You were my everything Never apart No one in between Then one day When you went your own way You felt justified And I was mortified But today You are just a picture, oh ho You are just a picture, oh ho And a thousand memories Is all I take with me Cuz your smile is just too much to see You're just a thousand memories Fantasies Broken dreams Reveries Sordid histories Following my heart, laden with reaction Without calibration or design Committed to a trial a life of understanding Can't somebody show a sign to you? For me, to see if you only knew That you were the one You were my everything Never apart No one in between Then one day When you went your own way You felt justified And I was mortified But today You are just a picture, oh ho You are just a picture, oh ho And a thousand memories Is all I take with me 'Cause a picture is worth a thousand memories