

So Many Dynamos, New Bones

I put the breath in your lungs
And I'll take it back if I want
I'll pour the water that floods out your trachea.

I put the words on your tongue
With one word I say, I'll take them away
I'll cut the wires that run through your cranium.

Do you believe wonderful things are waiting in the shadows to start happening?
I would believe what you believe, if you'd only stop believing in me

I put the fire in the skies
And I'll make it darker than you'd ever realized
If you think you've seen everything, you should open your eyes.

I would believe what you believe, if we could agree on a single thing.
I would believe what you believe, if you'd only stop believing.

If it's such a miracle then I'm starting over again
I need new bones, I need them
If it's such a miracle then I'm starting over again
I need new bones, I need them
If it's such a miracle then I'm starting over again
I'll prove you wrong, I'll prove it
If it's such a miracle then I'm starting over again
I need new bones, I need them

I put the breath in your lungs
And I'll take it back if I want
I'll pour the water the floods out your trachea.

I put the words on your tongue
With one word I say, I'll take them away
I'll cut the wires that run through your cranium

The record doesn't lie, so what friend could the record be?
Will it all be forgotten with the final beat,
When our synapses finally sleep?